Introduction

About Catalyst Foundation

Catalyst Foundation (including Seniors Information Service) is an inclusive charitable and independent organisation seeking to improve the lives of all South Australians in the areas of ageing, disability, lifestyle, employment and learning.

We help South Australians access to information, services and support by explaining the range of services available for them and recognising the need for the service to be relevant to specific target groups.

We provide information online, in print over the phone and face to face. We also assist clients with developing the skills to navigate the support system.

The range of information available at Catalyst Foundation includes:

- accommodation options, including independent living housing (rental and community housing retirement villages, residential parks, supported accommodation, housing with aged care on site)
- vacancies in rental units for seniors and retirement villages, in aged care facilities and supported residential facilities
- care and support options to help you remain at home
- respite care options
- healthy living & lifestyle choices
- rights and entitlements for older people and people with a disability
- a range of general information (concessions, wills, etc.)

In addition Catalyst Foundation provides regular information seminars, digital literacy program and access to an internet lounge.

If you would like to visit Catalyst Foundation in order to discuss your accommodation options it is advisable to make an appointment to ensure that a staff member is available to speak to you. We are open from Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm and are located at:

About this Guide

Rental independent living units (ILUs) are one of the retirement accommodation options available to older people. This publication provides a list of rental ILUs for seniors in SA. Whenever possible it provides details on costs, the number of units on each site, unit types (number of bedrooms) and the services available. We aim to expand this directory to gradually include housing options for younger people with disability as well. However information on community housing including providers catering specifically for people with a disability can be found on the sa.gov.au website. Contact us for assistance if required.

Details regarding individual sites have been obtained from the respective organisations and we have endeavoured to ensure they were correct at the time of publication. Please also be aware that prices listed can change and it is essential that you verify them prior to making any decision.

Catalyst Foundation maintains a register of vacancies for various types of retirement or aged accommodation including rental ILUs. All vacancies are updated regularly and are available free of charge. Vacancy information is also available on the website www.catalystfoundation.com.au/housing/.

COMMUNITY HOUSING

Housing Associations and Housing Co-operatives

Community housing provides secure, low cost rental housing for low income families and individuals and people with special needs (e.g. those who have experienced homelessness, the aged, people with a disability, survivors of domestic violence, people from non-English speaking backgrounds). It can encompass shared houses, single houses or units.

Community Housing

There are two types of Community Housing:

Housing Associations

Housing Co-operatives (AKA volunteer member-tenant managed community housing)

Housing Associations are particularly well placed to house people with special needs because they have the flexibility to provide appropriate housing and, where possible, support.

Housing Associations have a management structure, which brings people together with expertise in housing and expertise in working with the particular needs group being targeted.

Housing Co-operatives are tenant-managed. As managers, tenants' skills are developed through unpaid work in the co-op. Members work together to buy, build, maintain and manage their housing.

There are two stages to eligibility for community housing:

Meeting government base eligibility criteria for community housing

Meeting specific eligibility criteria of the individual community housing organisation for which you have applied

You can register for community housing through the organisation that you have identified as your preferred provider or through Housing SA.

Contact your preferred house provider(s) to obtain further information. Most or all places require application in writing and when doing this you need to include some details about yourself and your housing needs.

Further information and application forms can be found at www.sa.gov.au/topics/housing/public-and-community-housing.

Generally, rent is based on the TOTAL household income. That is, all the income that is earned from individuals in one property. This may be calculated at the percentage of approximately 25%.

COMMUNITY HOUSES

Community houses are purpose-built or modified larger homes which offer bedsitter accommodation in a supportive environment for people who have limited financial means. Residents are encouraged to continue their social contacts and friendships outside of the house just as they would in their own home.

The advantages of this type of accommodation are: company in the home with the knowledge that someone is nearby should there be a medical emergency, provision of meals and continuation of outside interests.

The entry criteria vary, with some having no entry premium and others requesting a fee. Residents pay between 70% - 85% of their pension plus Rent Assistance. The housekeeper is usually responsible for the shopping, preparing the main meals and cleaning the common areas. The residents are responsible for cleaning their own rooms and preparing their own breakfast. Community services such as those funded through the Commonwealth Home Support Programs and through the national Disability Insurance Scheme may be available subject to eligibility.

Community houses are not a style of housing which suits everyone, so it is advisable to look carefully at this option and be aware of both the advantages and disadvantages of living with other people. It is suggested that prospective residents discuss the option of community houses with family, friends or support worker.

It is important that prospective residents become aware of the services that are provided as part of the financial arrangements agrees upon. Community houses are NOT the same as living in an aged care facility and no nursing care is provided as part of the rental. If possible talk to residents and find out what services and facilities are located near the house, e.g., transport, shopping, community groups and medical facilities.

The prospective resident should also be aware of the entry fee requirements, weekly fees and refund arrangements on departure from the house.

Other questions to ask are:

- Is it possible to bring some of your own furniture?
- What are the residents' rights and responsibilities?

Other housing options that may be of suitable for you:

Besides the options featured in this directory there are other housing alternatives that may be suitable and affordable depending on your needs and circumstances.

If you have some savings and wish to secure a retirement housing unit, entry contribution retirement villages may be an option. They are usually provided by not-for-profit organisations and operate under the Retirement Villages Act. There are entry contribution units throughout the metropolitan area and in many country towns.

Some residential parks cater specifically for people over 50 years of age and rent sites for those who own a relocatable house. Some are ‘mixed use’, not age-specific and may rent a cabin or unit. They are located in the outer Adelaide metropolitan area, Fleurieu, Eyre and Yorke Peninsulas, Murray Bridge and the Riverland.

The National Rental Affordability Scheme (NRAS) provides incentives to housing providers offering rental houses below the market price. There are NRAS houses and units throughout the metropolitan area and in several country towns.

Contact us on (08) 8168 8776 or information@catalystfoundation.com.au for further information on any of the above and /or other accommodation options.

My Notes:
